Financial Capability in the United States 2016

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION OF AMERICANS HAS IMPROVED

The National Financial Capability Study (NFCS) shows evidence that the financial circumstances of Americans have improved over the last several years. Americans are finding it easier to pay their expenses and save for a rainy day—and they are also more satisfied with their financial condition.

About the Report

The National Financial Capability Study (NFCS) focuses on four key components of financial capability: Making Ends Meet, Planning Ahead, Managing Financial Products, and Financial Knowledge and Decision Making. Data for the NFCS were collected from June to October 2015 through an online survey of 27,564 American adults (roughly 500 per state, plus the District of Columbia). This report includes comparisons to prior waves of the NFCS conducted in 2012 and 2009.

More information about the National Financial Capability Study, including the survey instruments and detailed methodological information, can be found at www.USFinancialCapability.org.
